Actual Text, Alt Text, Expansion Text, and Alternate Description in the Contents Key

Actual Text

This is an example of actual text. The figure tag is a child of the paragraph tag.

Actual text can also be used to remediate non-standard glyphs used as list bullets:

- Tom
- Dick
- Harry

Alt Text

This image has alt text: Je t'aime (French for "I love you")

Alternate Description in the Contents Key

This image is linked to the web site Tagged PDF. The image has alt text. The link has an alternate description in the contents key.

Expansion Text

The W3C WCAG recommends using expansion text to define acronyms.
